169 Bar

"Hop In To Party All Night"

A typical dive bar, this little joint claims to be one of the oldest surviving local bars in Manhattan. Located on the Lower East Side, 169 Bar is popular among the locals and has earned an iconic reputation. The hip ambiance along with a happening crowd make this bar a great place to hang out during weekends. Apart from the decent range of drinks, this place serves delicious oysters, empanadas, dumplings, and chips and salsa. They are also open for private events like bachelor or birthday parties. The bar also features a pool table, jukebox, and a photo booth, making it a popular spot for a friends' night-out.

Sophie's

"Old East Village Dive"

This popular watering hole has seen its share of drinkers come and go despite the gentrification in the still gritty, yet ever-posher East Village. If you are looking for nostalgia in a building that reminds you of how the East Village once was, then Sophie's is the spot. Grab a cold beer while you enjoy a game of pool humming to a classic track played on the jukebox at this dimly lit place. The prices go easy on your pocket and you can have a great time with your buddies.

Julius'

"West Village Survivor"

Julius' is a landmark gay bar in West Village. It has been around for ages, having survived many turbulent times for the LGBTQIA population of New York City. The mature, good-natured crowd seems content to relax and enjoy beer and pub food. The rustic decor includes sawdust on the floor and giant, wooden spoons that serve as tables. Head over on a weekend for a fun night immersed in hearty hamburgers, great bar food, delicious drinks, and non-stop music to tap your feet to.

The Trailer Park Lounge & Grill

"Tropical-Themed Drinking Hole"

Themed around a trailer park and garnering acclaim for its upbeat and trendy persona, this bar is a colorful Hawaiian Tiki bar with general kitsch. The bright neon pigments that are splattered across the walls declare the cheerful ambiance that this place is famous for. As one steps through the fluorescent green doors, one is greeted by a tropical party atmosphere with freely flowing martini, chillis and hamburgers. With posters of pop stars gracing the walls and foot-tapping music belting out from the dozens of speakers, the mood is just right to create a fun-filled night.

The Levee

"Neighborhood Williamsburg Bar"

The Levee has a very friendly and familiar vibe, the kind of bar where everyone knows your name! Inside you will find a dartboard, board games, pool table, and a jukebox that churns out rock and heavy metal music. There is plenty of reasonably priced beer during the happy hour. Also served are delectable bites such as Frito pie and cheese balls.

The Charleston

"Good Time Guaranteed"

The Charleston doesn't quite keep up with the advancing night scene of Brooklyn, but that is exactly what makes this retro dive extraordinaire a favorite hangout spot for the locals. There is nothing pretentious about this bar with good-old fashioned booths, extremely friendly bartenders and lively rock music playing downstairs. The staggering choice of drinks might make your head spin ranging from bottled beer, draft beer, whisky, tequila, cocktails, wines and ales. But once you settle in with your drink and mix in with the crowd, a great time is guaranteed. An added bonus is that you get a free personal sized pizza with every drink you order! Can't beat that bang for your buck.

Sunny's Bar

"Local Favorite"

Sunny's Bar has been around for decades, a favorite of Red Hook locals and even some Manhattanites who travel to Brooklyn. The place is your typical neighborhood dive bar, without any frills. The drinks are cheap, the décor unpretentious with knick-knacks collected over the years on display. The place is swarming with friendly faces, young and old. A bar with high stools set at the counter greets visitors who can pick from a list of beers, wines, and other options. Live bands also perform here regularly.

Rudy's Bar & Grill

"Zona de Festas"

Esta bebida é muito popular no gosto dos veteranos e também do jovens. O choque inicial que se dá na entrada do bar passa rapidamente quando você se mistura na multidão de bailarinos, músicos, empresários. O serviço não perde tempo e vai direto ao ponto. Mas o que falta na Rudy , e suplantado pela atitude amigável e tranqüila . Muitos turistas têm encontrado um alívio nas bebidas baratas (pedir Rudy's Red) bem como nos seus despreziosos arredores.
