

"Best History Museums in Tokyo"

Criado por : Cityseeker

📍 8 Localizações indicadas

📷 by 0000 ©

Advertising Museum Tokyo

"Only Advertising Museum in Japan"

The Advertising Museum Tokyo is the only museum dedicated to promoting advertising and marketing studies. Here there are two kinds of exhibitions. The first one is a special exhibition introducing many award-winning advertisements from all over the world. The second one is a permanent exhibition where you can learn about the history of advertisement from the edo era (starting in 1603) to the present in Japan. Artworks in special exhibitions will be changed about 12 times per year, so if you wish to go there, please check the exhibition schedule on the website.

📞 +81 3 6218 2500

🌐 www.admt.jp/en/index.html

📍 1-8-2 Higashishinbashi, Tóquio

📷 by Nesnad ©

📞 +81 3 3222 2577

National Showa Memorial Museum

"Museum Focusing on People"

Since its opening in 1999, the National Showa Memorial Museum collects, preserves, and exhibits materials related to the early Showa era (from 1935 to around 1955). Here you can learn about what peoples' lives were like during that time period. There is also an audio visual room and a library, where you can read, watch, and listen to various materials.

🌐 www.showakan.go.jp/

✉ somu@showakan.go.jp

📍 1-6-1 Kudanminami, Tóquio

📷 by cocoparisienne ©

📞 +81 3 6271 3350

Fujifilm Square

"More Than Film and Cameras"

Along with Nikon and Canon, Fujifilm is one of the Japanese photo industry's heavy-hitters. Fujifilm Square, located in Roppongi and dedicated to all things Fuji, is a great place to spend some time alone, with friends or with the family. The cool, modern complex centers around photography, in which Fuji has been involved for 50 years, but also exhibits the other products that involve Fujifilm, like healthcare or lifestyle improvement. Whether you want to pop into a free gallery, buy a limited edition print, rub some newly-developed emollient into your skin, or learn about Fujifilm's history, it can all be accomplished with just one trip to the impressive Fujifilm Square!

🌐 fujifilmsquare.jp/en/

✉ square@fujifilm.co.jp

📍 9-7-3 Akasaka, Tóquio

Museu Nacional de Tóquio

"Tesouros culturais"

Museu Nacional de Tóquio exibe um bando de esculturas, pinturas, caligrafia, objetos arqueológicos e outras artes decorativas. Dividido em seções que abrangem arte japonesa, coreana e chinesa, as coleções do museu são nada menos que a preservação artística da história e cultura asiáticas. Exposições, palestras, reuniões e workshops são realizados regularmente, para que os visitantes tenham acesso a algumas informações valiosas sobre o maior continente do mundo. O museu também guarda documentos históricos que datam dos séculos X e XI.

+81 50 5541 8600

www.tnm.jp/?lang=en

13-9 Ueno Park, Ueno Park, Tóquio

by Nick-D

The Center of the Tokyo Raids and War Damage

"Memory of the Tokyo Air Raids"

The Center of the Tokyo Raids and War Damage is located in Koto-ku, which is the place that suffered the most serious damage from the Tokyo air raids. This museum displays many pieces of history from the war, including a model of an incendiary bomb used in the war, the belongings of bombing victims, and the U.S. Army's report about the Tokyo air raid. Besides these materials, the museum sometimes holds special events. This museum gives you an opportunity to contemplate the fragility of war and peace.

+81 3 5857 5631

tokyo-sensai.net/

1-5-4 Kitasuna, Koto City, Tóquio

by Daderot

Yamatane Museum of Art

"Fine Period Paintings"

A former head of Yamatane Securities, Taneji Yamazaki, amassed a collection of about 1,500 Meiji period paintings. Among the artists represented are Kokei Kobayashi, Kagaku Murakami, Seiho Takeuchi, Ryushi Kawabata and Hyakusui Hirafuku. The setting is modern, Japanese-style, and includes a rock garden, library and tearoom. Admission fee is applicable for visitors above 15 years of age. Handicapped visitors get a discount.

+81 3 5777 8600

www.yamatane-museum.jp/english/

3-12-36 Hiroo, Shibuya City, Tóquio

by axonite

Paper Museum

"The History of Paper"

In 1950, the Oji Paper Manufacturing Company established this museum to display its impressive collection of paper and paper-related items. Separate exhibits show the handicraft of origami, an early apparatus for making paper and a piece of papyrus from Egypt. Toys, castles and clothing are exhibited. The facility includes a library with an extensive number of books on the art of producing paper.

+81 3 3916 2320

papermuseum.jp/ja/

1-1-3 Oji, Tóquio

Edo-Tokyo Open Air Architectural Museum

"Past Perfect"

Ever wondered how Japanese houses and shops looked decades ago? Well, here is your chance to gain knowledge. Much of Tokyo's architectural heritage had been destroyed in the Great Kanto earthquake and the World War II bombings. In order to retrieve its past, the Tokyo Metropolitan Government established the Tatemono-en (open air architectural museum) as part of the Edo-Tokyo museum in 1993. The museum has 27 buildings (with plans for four more) that run along small streets and span architectural time-lines from the mid-Edo period through the mid-Showa. Do not miss the Tsunashima family's thatched-roof farmhouse, the old post box, the top of the watchtower from the Ueno Fire Station and the bricks from Ginza Brick Town. Walk through the streets and take history lessons! Edo-Tokyo Open Air Architectural Museum closes every Monday (When Monday is a national holiday, closes on the following day.)

 +81 42 388 3300

 www.tatemonoen.jp/

 3-7-1 Sakuramachi, Koganei

JUNTE-SE A NÓS À:

cityseeker.com